Army housing called economic boost

By Dennis Grubbaugh
Managing Editor

GRANITE CITY — New housing that will shelter up to 400 Army personnel here means a boost to the local economy, officials said at groundbreaking ceremonies Monday afternoon at the Charles Melvin Price Support Center.

"This is another significant initiative for this Army post," said Maj. Gen. Richard E. Stephenson, commander of the U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command in St. Louis, the host of the ceremony. "Another 300 to 400 folks will be adding their voice to the community."

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Louisville District, in September awarded a $9.7 million contract to C. Rallo Contracting Co. Inc. of St. Louis to build the new 100-unit military subdivision. Charles and Mike Rallo, father and son representatives of the company, participated in the groundbreaking.

The subdivision will comprise two general officers' quarters, 66 four-bedroom units, 57 three-bedroom units and five two-bedroom units. There will be 30 officer units and 70 apartments for enlisted personnel.

Construction will take place on the northwestern portion of the center near the base soccer field. The project should take 18 months to complete, Stephenson said.

Guest speaker at the event, 21st Congressional District U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, said the project will be the first of many if he has his way as a legislator.

He repeated comments he has made about fighting to keep the installation open, in light of a federal study aimed at trimming from the federal budget unneeded military bases.

"I can tell you in my judgment and opinion that if it is up to (local legislators), not only will (the center) not be closed, but you will see more plans and activities at this facility," he said.

Costello said he has been "asked on a daily basis" about the status of the center, since stories began circulating last month that it was one of three in the state targeted for closing. A specially appointed commission is now studying bases nationwide and will be making a report in January.

The newly elected Belleville Democrat said the rumors were based on a supposed list obtained by U.S. News and World Report. However, after looking into it personally, "I can tell you there is not an official list," he said.

Costello, and the other speakers, gave credit to the late Congressman Mel Price, whose support of the center led to its renaming last July.

"It was (Price's) idea to push forward," Costello said. He pointed out that the local base's services are available to 80,000 St. Louis area military retirees and to 53 federal agencies.

Maj. Gen. Stephenson repeated what Price's widow, Geraldine, said when the army center was named for the congressman in July 1988. "He must be the happiest little sergeant in the sky."

Mrs. Price died Sept. 18.

RC Bush, executive vice president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, said the military housing project is "very significant" in terms of money that will be spent within the community.

"(With the new students) it will also have considerable impact on our local schools," he said. Some military personnel now rent housing outside the base and would likely relocate when depot-based housing becomes available, but Bush said he did not think those numbers would be significant.

No Price namesake submarine yet

By Edward T. Hearn
PRJ Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — When Rep. Mel Price died in April at age 83, Congress responded by asking the Navy to name a missile-firing Trident submarine for the longtime lawmaker. For the last seven months, the Navy has done nothing.

Sen. Howard Baker, House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., led the bipartisan effort to honor Price, Navy Secretary William L. Ball III has yet to announce when the U.S.S. Melvin Price will be named and be put to sea.

"I'm sure something will happen, but it hasn't happened yet," said Navy spokesman Lt. Brian Cullin. "Right now that leaves us up in the air. There's been no notice from the Secretary of the Navy's Office."

Aspin's request was a "sense of Congress" resolution and not a law compelling Ball to act. The wording of the resolution called for the next Trident "to be named" for Price. Thirteen of 15 Tridents have been given names by the Navy.

"It's a sense of Congress, not a binding law. It's just the people of Congress saying it would be a nice thing," said Brown Sharp, a spokesman for the (See PRICE, Page 7A)

Woman's alibi frees Madison man after 7 years

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

A Madison man, imprisoned since 1982 for an armed robbery he has repeatedly denied committing, will be released from the Vienna (Ill.) Correctional Center today or Friday, thanks to a sentence reduction granted Monday.

Ricky Teller, 35, had served nearly seven years of a 20-year sentence imposed Jan. 13, 1982, for allegedly robbing J & J Liquor, 3112 Maryville Road, on June 12, 1982.

Without the reduction, Teller would not have become eligible for parole for two more years.

Chief 3rd Circuit Criminal Judge Philip J. Rarick reduced the sentence to 14 years, with credit for time served. He is the judge who had sentenced Teller in 1982.

Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen recommended the reduction based on a sworn statement by a woman who said she and Teller had been together at the time the robbery was committed. Allen, who leaves office Dec. 1, was unavailable for comment.

Linda Miller of Fairmont City told a Madison County Sheriff's Department investigator, Don Bridick, that she and Teller had been together June 11-13, 1981.

On June 12, a man wearing a ski mask held a clerk at J & J at gunpoint and also placed a gun to the head of the clerk's daughter, then 14. The clerk had testified at Teller's trial that she was sure he was the robber.

Miller's statement was the basis of a motion for a new trial filed Monday by Assistant Public Defender Tyler Bateman. When the state's attorney offered a sentence reduction, Bateman withdrew the motion.

Don Bridick said Tuesday that Miller, who had moved to Florida for a time, told him she had not come forward previously out of fear that she, too, would be arrested in connection with the crime and because she feared it would affect her keeping custody of her child.

Bridick said Miller couldn't remember the dates in question but remembered that she had cashed a refund check from an airline during the time she was with Teller. Bridick traced the check and found it was cashed at about that time.

Both Teller and Miller denied having had any contact during his imprisonment. Bridick said he did attempt to verify this.

"Ricky said they didn't. She said they didn't," Bridick said.

Steve Heisner, an assistant warden at the Vienna Correctional Center, said records are kept of who visits or corresponds with prisoners, but he declined to say whether Miller had been in contact with Teller.

Heisner said Teller had been "a very well adjusted inmate" since being transferred to the minimum security institution in December 1986. Bridick said Teller was the head of the prison's Jaycees chapter.

Ricky Teller has a lengthy arrest record dating back to his juvenile years and has served time in at least four correctional institutions, including a 5-to-15-year sentence for robbery.

He was released from the Madison County Jail on May 20, 1981. He and Miller were both unavailable for comment.

Bridick said Teller had expressed uncertainty Monday about his ability to adjust to freedom and about how people would receive him.

"I told him the court did its job," Bridick said, and it's up to him now to prove he can make it out on the streets.

Teller's mother, Pauline Ruediger of Madison, said she last talked to him about three weeks ago.

"I just hope he does good this time," she said. "But I don't know — the cops never liked him around here."

Granite city man faces two counts of forgery

GRANITE CITY — Rory P. Magyar, 31, 2100 block of Manley Avenue, was charged with two counts of forgery in informations issued Monday by the Madison County state's attorney's office.

Magyar was arrested Nov. 18 at Central Bank in the 3800 block of Nameoki Road after he was questioned about a check he allegedly attempted to cash.

The check was issued to Rory Magyar and written on an account of Charlotte McBride of Granite City.

R. Scott Mount of Central Bank told police that bank tellers had been alerted to watch for any checks written on the account of McBride, who had reported some checks were missing from her residence.

The informations alleged Magyar cashed a $625 check on the McBride account Nov. 16 and had a $650 check, issued to himself, in his possession when arrested Nov. 18.

No plea was entered by Magyar in a court appearance Monday. Bail was set at $4,000 and he was transferred Tuesday to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville.

'St. Nick' sneaking into town

By Valerie Evenden

GRANITE CITY — Santa Claus will dive in town without much fanfare this year. But he is coming.

The jolly old gentleman is set to make his first appearance at noon Friday, Nov. 25, at his holiday headquarters at 19th Street and Edison Avenue.

Santa's Cabin again will serve as Santa's temporary home until Christmas Eve, Saturday, Dec. 24, according to Elmer Stille of the Downtown Merchants Association.

The association and the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce are co-sponsoring Santa's visit here.

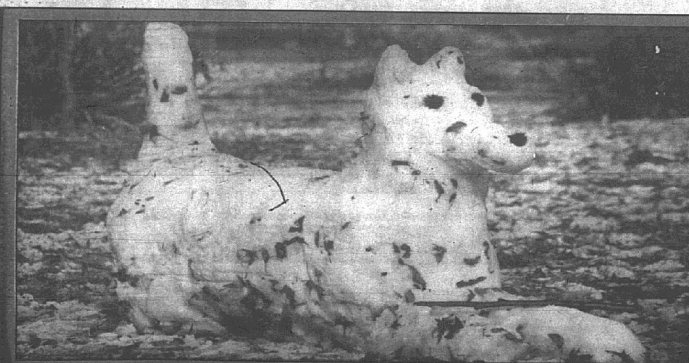

Santa will listen to the Christmas wishes of children, who also can have photographs taken with the seasonal visitor, Stille said.

Assisted by his helpers, Santa will be at the cabin from noon until 8 p.m. Friday.

His schedule for the remainder of his visit here is: Monday through Friday, 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

An estimated 1,500 youngsters visited the cabin last year.

A large crowd of parents and children also greeted Santa when he arrived by helicopter in downtown Granite City in November 1987. No helicopter ride is planned this year.

Snow's debut more hassle than hazard

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — While it may have left more than a few motorists with sluggish engines and frost-covered windshields, the inch of snow that fell Sunday morning posed few problems for local street departments.

"We were surprised to see it," Superintendent of Streets Mac Warfield said. "We came down and looked at a lot of cars but we didn't need it. It was money just sitting there."

Warfield said the department is geared up for winter, having received 800 tons of salt just over a week ago. He said one area that is almost always called following snow is the 19th Street overpass. "We didn't even have to do that," Warfield said.

Because the snow did come in the aftermath of rain and thunderstorms, some streets flooded, he said. The street department cleared many clogged catch basins, allowing water to drain.

"We pulled an automobile tire out of one and there were lots of blocks in others," Warfield said. Nameoki Township also had its share of clogged drains. Lee Adams, highway committee chairman, said that flooding occurred in a few areas because of jammed culverts.

Casino charity games to resume

A law signed Nov. 17 clears the way for the return of casino night charity fund-raisers.

"These games have proven to be a popular source of funds for more than 200 charities, schools and churches, bringing in $7.5 million in gross revenues since they first were legalized two years ago," Gov. James Thompson said. "This legislation permits a resumption and provides a modest expansion of the games."

Senate Bill 1889 deletes the Sept. 1, 1988, sunset date that had been contained in the 1986 legislation which first legalized the games.

Because the Legislature adjourned this summer without passing legislation to extend the games beyond the sunset date, the charitable organizations were forced to suspend plans for the games for the past 11 weeks.

The bill continues strict requirements that organizations sponsoring the events must be designated as not for profit by the Internal Revenue Service and must obtain annual licenses for the events from the Illinois Department of Revenue.

Persons or businesses supplying gaming equipment for casino nights or renting space to be used for the games also must be licensed by the state.

The law permits the use of 14 casino-type games, including roulette, poker and gin rummy, and it prohibits the use of slot machines and other coin-operated games.

The bill also raises the maximum bet at a game from $5 to $10. For events in counties of less than 60,000 population, the bill allows a license to be valid for up to two locations, instead of only one, and it increases the number of events to be held at one site from four to eight, if there is no other suitable location within five miles.

Big volume of tailpipe tests here

SPRINGFIELD — Area residents are waiting — and complaining — less at the vehicle emission testing station in Wood River since the station was opened for an extra day each week.

It is slightly busier than the station at Mitchell and much busier than the one at East St. Louis.

Drivers are having to wait less time when they visit the Wood River testing station, said Illinois Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Maggie Katt.

Before last December, the agency had received numerous complaints about long waits at Wood River. From the time the testing program began in May 1986 until December 1987, the station was open only two days a week.

A third day was added in December because of the complaints.

The station is now open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The Wood River station continues to be the busiest of the three testing stations in the Metro East area.

In September, 3,989 tests were done there compared to 3,377 at the station in Mitchell and 2,689 at the East St. Louis station, Katt said.

The Mitchell station is open 2½ days a week, and the East St. Louis station is open 3½ days a week.

Since the testing began, more than 225,000 tests have been done at the three stations in Madison-St. Clair counties. About 20 percent of the vehicles have failed the tests, Katt said.

The program was started under pressure from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as part of the state's efforts to reduce ozone pollution levels in the Metro East and Chicago areas. The levels still exceed standards in the federal Clean Air Act.

Teacher on radio

Ed Schroeder, an English and gifted education teacher at Coed Junior High School in Granite City, will be a guest on KMOX Radio's "At Your Service" program (1120 AM) from 1 to 2 p.m. Friday, Nov. 25.

Schroeder, a 26-year career teacher and member of the Illinois Federation of Teachers, recently received the Illinois Distinguished Educator Award.

Bishop Ryan to visit Pope, cites progress by diocese

Bishop Daniel Ryan, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Springfield in Illinois, will visit with Pope John Paul II in Rome Dec. 3-10.

Along with other bishops from Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, he will meet with the pope as part of the group and on an individual basis.

He said that during their private visit, he and Pope John Paul "will probably not come to some earth-shaking decision." Rather, the visit is a courtesy extended by the pope to all the visiting bishops.

Rome the pope will address the entire delegation regarding some topic of pastoral concern, and he may invite the bishops to share a meal with him.

The visit, called an "ad limina" visit in reference to the prayer a bishop prays "at the doors of the tombs of the apostles Peter and Paul in Rome," is required of all bishops every five years.

To prepare for the visit, Bishop Ryan, who came to the diocese in January 1984, has submitted to the Vatican a written report about the state of the diocese from Jan. 1, 1984, to Dec. 31, 1987.

The 38-page report includes information regarding the administrative structures of the diocese, economics, worship, education, social services, clergy and laity.

In the report the bishop offers high praise for the clergy and the laity in the diocese. He says the priests are "self-sacrificing and hard working. They are generous in giving their time and talents" in their parish ministries and through outreach to other groups.

Generosity is also the hallmark of the laity, Ryan says. Church members offer time and skills unselfishly in their parishes and act as "leaven bringing the Gospel message to the marketplace."

The report says educational institutions and programs for child and adult religious education in the diocese are "excellent." It commends the many women and men, lay and religious, who dedicate themselves to all educational endeavors in the diocese.

It also notes that support for social services, works of justice and charity, and contributions to the church's mission efforts are strong values for the people of the diocese.

Mention of the Pastoral Plan Toward 1991 is included in the report. The plan is a process of consultation and collaboration between clergy and laity that will provide the diocese with a direction for its ministry into the 21st century.

For example, it requires every parish to have an operative parish pastoral council by 1991. In addition to that plan approved in 1986, the diocese has adopted seven priorities which are a part of the report: sacredness of life, spiritual growth, family life, adult education, youth ministry, stewardship and leadership development.

Some general concerns are also included, including the high divorce rate in America and the decreasing numbers of men who seek ordination to the priesthood.

Bishop Ryan believes "many marriages end in divorce because couples lacked the preparation and maturity to assume the responsibilities of married life." By implementing a diocesan marriage preparation policy, which is now being drafted, the diocese hopes to help decrease the rate of divorce among Catholics.

Concern is expressed over the stress many priests have as a result of the added responsibilities they face because of a decline in their numbers. Through various programs, the Diocese of Springfield provides its priests with support for personal health and effective ministry, the report notes.

Other topics include the sacramental life of the diocese, parish realignment, the role of lay parish administrators, the pro-life movement and the effectiveness of Catholic healthcare facilities in the diocese.

The report has preceded the bishop to Rome and will be reviewed by Vatican officials before the scheduled visit.

A Granite City Steel security vehicle joined in the chase along with the security officer located Johnson's car on Cargill Road, Granite City and Pontoon Beach police assisted by checking traffic at various intersections.

In addition to speeding, Johnson was charged with fleeing and attempting to elude police, disobeying a traffic control, reckless driving and two charges of disobeying a traffic control device. He was released after posting $102 bail and his driver's license, pending a Dec. 16 court appearance.

Cyde Edward Pointer, 34, 1500 block of Market Street, was charged with assault Nov. 13 after he allegedly insulted a Madison woman when she and a man were walking at Third Street and Madison Avenue. Pointer was arrested a short time later in the 400 block of Madison Avenue.

Matthew 21:13 — "It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

— Quiz, churches, regardless of denomination, and God's house are one and the same. Jesus said that God's house shall be called the house of prayer. Prayer means we are communicating with God. We ask God to supply our needs; to reveal His will for our lives; or we may just lift up our voices in praise and thanksgiving. This attitude is to prayer.

— Prayer should distinguish our churches as God's house as much as our preaching and as much as our singing. After all, it is written in His Word that it should be so. We are not heard for much speaking nor for vain repetitions, but according to the measure of faith we have when we pray.

— Let it be said of your church, this is the house of prayer.

This letter is to thank you for your business this past year and also to notify you of our "Fall Furnace Start Up Special."

With the long cold winter nights just around the corner it is time to get the furnace cleaned and checked so as to help prevent costly breakdowns as well as obtain maximum operating efficiency of your system. Our first part start up special includes:

1. Clean burners. Rust and dirt accumulation on burners can cause incomplete burning of gas and increase your fuel bill.
2. Check flue or chimney for draft. Squirrels, birds and soot can block a flue almost overnight.
3. Check heat exchanger. This is the heart of the furnace and should be inspected annually.
4. Blower motor and fan. Oil and cleaning can add years of life to these components.
5. Thermostat. Heat anticipator settings have as much to do with comfort inside your home as proper clothing does outside.
6. Fan and limit control. Fan should cycle on and off without wasting fuel. The limit is your protection against overheating.
7. Gas valve and pilot assembly. A clean assembly will help keep your pilot burning and save you money.
8. Check filters. If you need extra filters call us with the size and we will bring them with us when you schedule your cleaning.
9. Power supply. Check fuse or circuit breaker for proper size. Check general condition of wiring connections.
10. Gas piping at furnace. Check for leaks or deterioration of pipe and fittings.

The cost of this service is only $19.95. Our customers are being notified of this opportunity in advance of newspaper ads so you can schedule your "Fall Start Up Special" at your convenience. We thank you for your business this past year and hope we can continue to service your heating, A/C, and plumbing in the future.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes a property owner will begin performing tasks which were not previously undertaken by him. For instance, a grocery store owner may instruct his employees to begin helping customers carry their bags of groceries to their cars, or a landlord may begin to clear sidewalks of ice and snow on a regular basis even though he had never performed this task in the past. The question arises as to whether the owner of the premises is responsible for injuries sustained by a patron when the voluntary tasks are not performed in a given situation.

In one recent case, three individuals owned a building in Evanston, Illinois. The building had a revolving door, and the elevator operator customarily assisted the elderly and disabled through this revolving door. In 1982, a 77-year old woman was leaving the building through the revolving door. The elevator operator did not assist her in this instance because he was standing in the lobby drinking a soda pop and looking away from the door.

As the elderly woman stepped out of the revolving door, an unidentified person ran into the door. The door moved rapidly and hit the woman in the back, knocking her to the ground. She suffered a severe fracture of the thigh bone, and a broken finger. She remained in the hospital for three months, which included six weeks in traction. She spent another two months in the nursing home. As a result of the injury, her left leg was two inches shorter than the right leg.

The plaintiff in this case brought a negligence action against the building owners. The issue in this case is whether the defendant had voluntarily assumed a duty to assist elderly people through the revolving doors based on the job description of the elevator operator. There was no question that the operators normally assisted the elderly through the doors and that they failed to perform that task in this situation.

The Appellate Court ruled for the defendants. Even though the elevator operators customarily assisted the elderly building patrons, they had no duty to assist them. The woman went through the revolving doors without attempting to seek assistance from the elevator operator. Furthermore, she was neither disabled nor handicapped. Since using the revolving door did not expose her to an unreasonable risk of harm, the Court refused to impose a duty to act where voluntary tasks had previously been undertaken to improve public services.

Below is a brief comparison of benefits under the old law with new benefits that will become effective in 1989, 1990, 1991 and 1992.

Inpatient Hospital Coverage: Old Law — Up to 90 days coverage per illness, plus up to 60 lifetime reserve days; 190 days per lifetime in psychiatric hospital. Patient pays a $540 deductible for first 60 days of each spell of illness; copayment of $135 per day for next 30 days; copayment of $270 per day for each of 60 lifetime reserve days.

New Law — Unlimited hospital coverage after an annual deductible — $564 for 1989; no copayment.

Hospice Care: Old Law — Lifetime limit of 21 days for terminally ill patient. Patient pays 5 percent of the cost of drugs up to $5 per prescription, 5 percent of reasonable charges for respite care at home.

New Law — No limit of days for terminally ill patient; patient pays same as current law.

The first of the two Tridents yet to be named is not set for delivery until January 1994, which would mean the earliest the U.S.S. Melvin Price would join the blue water Navy would be six years after the St. Clair County Democrat's death.

But there's a precedent for re-naming a Trident, a $617 million vessel that cruises the ocean with 24 nuclear-tipped missiles aboard. The Navy approved renaming the U.S.S. Rhode Island for Sen. Henry M. Jackson shortly after the Washington state Democrat's death in 1983.

The reasons for honoring Price with a Trident for many years served in Congress for more than 43 years and was a proponent of nuclear energy — he cosponsored the Price-Anderson Act, which limited accident liability for nuclear plant operators — and was a force behind the advent of the nuclear Navy in the 1950s.

Price, who chaired the Joint Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy, was chairman of the House Armed Services Committee from 1974 to 1984.

It was Aspin who eventually led the effort to name the ship. Aspin was in 1985 when his advancing age and his ability to lead the committee became too controversial an issue for the panel's Democratic majority.

But it was the same Aspin who worked to make Price one of only two Americans to have his name attached to a Trident, the sea-based leg of the U.S. nuclear deterrent.

On the House floor five days after Price's death, Aspin noted that five attack submarines were named for former members of Congress and that a new nuclear powered aircraft carrier was going to be named for retiring Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.

"There would be no more fitting tribute to a man who spent his life in service to the security of this nation, especially its nuclear Navy, than to name the next Trident submarine for Mel Price," Aspin said.

Scott plan will test unity

A real test of bi-state regional unity may be provided by the Scott, civilian airport proposal unveiled this fall.

The plan involves utilizing Scott Air Force Base as both a military and civilian airport, easing future congestion at Lambert Airport.

THE HEART of the matter is whether regionalism or parochialism dominates one's outlook. Another key element is trust—mutual trust between Missouri and Illinois interests that they will deal with each other openly and fairly.

If Lambert's 10-million-passenger annual volume grows to 15 million by 1995 and 20 million by 2005, there would be so much crowding that it would be a blessing to have a spacious Illinois airport to handle a couple of million.

But if every federal dollar spent at Scott is seen as a dollar that otherwise might have gone to Lambert, there could be jealousy and opposition.

LEADERSHIP COUNCIL Southwestern Illinois has provided leadership by forming a Scott Task Force. Carl Mathias of Granite City has devoted considerable time to the issue in recent months.

Formation of the Scott Joint Use Citizens' Committee was announced Nov. 15. Its address is P.O. Box 8166, Belleville 62222.

Force is available to groups. Its scenes and words encourage proceeding with joint-use efforts.

ADVANTAGES of what is viewed as a "common-sense partnership" are being outlined.

For the military, a Scott joint-use base would bring: an increase in airfield capacity; cost-sharing of maintenance facilities, emergency facilities and air traffic control; and commercial air service for 60,000 Air Force personnel who travel annually.

For Southwestern Illinois businesses, there would be local material and equipment sales with potential profit of $7.2 million in 1991-2005; business expansions are predicted along with new business opportunities.

FOR THE PEOPLE of Southwestern Illinois, the Task Force forecasts: 2,154 direct jobs with income of $54.7 million by year 2005; 1,616 indirect jobs with income of $45.4 million by 2005; 1,600 construction jobs over the period of 1991-2005 with income of $61.5 million.

Local units of government would get positive national and world recognition of the development advantages and opportunities in Southwestern Illinois. And their tax base and revenues would increase.

*****

ENVIRONMENTAL preservation has received major attention.

Supplemental national air facility capacity would be provided at minimal cost compared to development of an entirely new airport.

Utilization of farmland and wetlands would be kept to a minimum. Much ground would continue to be farmed during operation of the airport, and a plan has been written for wetland replacement and mitigation.

IMPROVED AIR TRAVEL is a goal of the project, which could generate total economic impact of $896 million, more than four times the investment of less than $200 million.

The citizens' committee will be composed entirely of volunteers. Those interested in volunteering their time and talents may write to Leadership Council Southwestern Illinois, Campus Box 1029, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Edwardsville 62026.

About $20,000 has been raised and additional funds are being sought to help meet such costs as mailing of brochures and bumper stickers to the public.

Venice overpass bid to be opened Dec. 2

The Illinois Department of Transportation will open bids Dec. 2 for $183 million in various road and bridge improvement projects including replacement of the superstructure of the Venice Broadway overpass with a concrete slab structure.

Other local projects include intersection lighting on Illinois 162 at Mckinley Lane at the east edge of Granite City; weed control spraying on various routes in Madison County; parapet repair on the westbound Interstate 270 bridge over Chain of Rocks Canal, north of Granite City; and 1.74 miles of concrete pavement, drainage structures, construction of a concrete deck beam bridge over railroad tracks and modernization of traffic signals on Center Grove Road, from Illinois 157 to east of Illinois 158 in Edwardsville.

Health-care work during summer cited

State Health Director Dr. Bernard J. Turnock has commended the state's long-term-care industry for its record in coping with the record-breaking heat this summer.

Turnock said no life-threatening violations were found in long-term-care centers throughout the state this year, while 10 serious violations were found during the 1986 heat wave.

However, the number of complaints about excessive heat in nursing homes increased by 40 percent this summer when compared to 1987; the percentage of complaints where violations were found dropped by 4 percent.

Businesses seized in state tax 'lesson'

The Illinois Department of Revenue seized five businesses last week for non-payment of taxes in a statewide sweep with a message.

"Pay your honest share, or pay the consequences," said Revenue Director Roger D. Sweet. "Padding the door on a business is a serious step, a last-ditch effort to collect what is usually a long-overdue tax. Today we reminded delinquent taxpayers across the state that we are prepared to take this final step when it's necessary."

The seizures in the Chicago area, Rockford, Peoria and Effingham closed down a club, an adult film theater, a hardware store, a truck parts store and a pool contractor. The amounts overdue ranged from $4,683 to $193,554.

Services by state help 651 disabled

The Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services helped 651 people with disabilities achieve their vocational goals in October, said Susan Sutter, director.

The majority, 425, were competitively employed. Another 111 became homemakers, and 102 worked in sheltered workshops, Sutter said. Those who wish more information on vocational or DORS programs may call the Disabled Individuals Assistance Line, 1-800-233-DIAL.

Vote shouldn't be challenged

Voters who approved the recent referendum mandating creation of subdistricts for the Belleville Area College boundaries are getting somewhat of a slap in the face by ever-dissatisfied trustee Ted Farmer.

Farmer takes issue with a portion of the plan that requires all seven board seats to be up for election next November. He and other current board members are upset because they will be forced to run again before their terms of office are up. That might be an inconvenience, but it would certainly seem that the will of the voters should also be the will of the trustees.

The referendum was approved 57,710 to 53,223. It allows the Madison County and Randolph County portions of the district to get some say on the college board. Previously, trustees were elected at large, which guaranteed that heavily populated Belleville was over-represented on the board. Under the new set-up, one member will be elected from each of seven subdistricts of equal population.

State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, sponsored a bill calling for a referendum, following a push for it by the Press-Record/Journal, among others. We reasoned that with an entire branch campus in our own community, we at least deserved some say in the decisions affecting that campus.

Farmer said he thought it was unfair to run for a six-year term only "to be removed without cause" during the course of that term. However, we feel confident that voters will return qualified candidates to office.

It should have been expected that the referendum wouldn't be met with smiles from the BAC board members. But since they have to live with it, they would be better off doing what they can to ensure a smooth transition, rather than complain.

On a related note, BAC's Farmer came up with another dandy idea when he told fellow board members that they should start looking for someone willing to donate large sums of money to the college in exchange for changing the name of the campus.

The idea is that a $30 million gift would merit keeping the benefactor's name. As an example, if Congressman Jerry Costello found money he didn't need, the campus could become "Costello Community College." Or at the very least he could get a wing of the library named for him, say "Costello Corner."

Unfortunately, benefactors generally don't work like that. They give money only to causes they genuinely trust. And putting the campus up for sale doesn't establish much trust.

Farmer suggests the idea at this time, because he believes next year's board make-up will be in favor of a name that better reflects the BAC service area, including Granite City and Red Bud. We can't imagine any board that would want to break with tradition the minute it's seated.

Farmer has been an advocate of bolstering the college's image, which is good. Raising money is also good. But a quiet, statesmanlike approach will work far better than a public address system.

Group attracting big money

Some who opposed the advancement of Jerry Costello to Congress worried about vesting so much power in one person. As chairman of the St. Clair County Board, they reasoned, he was a master tactician who knew how to get his way on a wide range of issues and appointments.

Even without assessing the validity of such viewpoints, it seems clear that county leaders usually have learned to amass considerable influence; it "goes with the territory."

All of which comes to mind when observing Costello's successor as board chairman, Francis Touchette. Reports indicate a political committee he heads possessed a half-million dollars at one point this year.

In defense of the committee, it not only aids political candidates but pays for extensive charitable programs, including food for poor persons. Donations are received from individuals in and out of public office, from businesses and groups, and from those buying political dinner tickets.

Since Costello was an able fund-raiser throughout the campaign, it might seem possible to draw a parallel between his success and Touchette's bulging fund. However, Touchette's committee dates back several decades, long before the board chairman vacancy developed.

What it boils down to is that, even where a county political organization represents large numbers of poverty-stricken people, a cash-flow problem is not necessarily inevitable.

Representation is increased

Appointment of Alton Alderman Albert Charleston doubles the number of blacks on the 29-member Madison County Board. Donald Garrett of Madison was re-elected in District 23.

Charleston will represent the district served by William R. Haine.

The latter, elected Nov. 8 as state's attorney, recommended Charleston and that appointment was made Nov. 16 by Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer.

A former police officer, Charleston has been an alderman 12 years. Haine said of his successor that "his constituency recognizes him as a man who is color-blind when it comes to public policy and his concerns as a custodian of tax dollars."

Only one other board change is scheduled at the start of the new term in December. With Don McLean retiring, William Krumeich of Edwardsville was elected over Eleanor Schulte, 1,925 to 1,734.

In the only other relatively close balloting, incumbent Herschel Beane of Godfrey defeated Robert Copley 1,787 to 1,628, incumbent Harold D. Byers of Highland beat Harold R. Rutz 2,071 to 1,897, and incumbent Fred Dalton of Collinsville overcame John Shimkus 1,853 to 1,474.

Other contested positions went to incumbent William Little of Alton over Eugene Crivello and incumbent Leroy Kuchel of East Alton over Robert Voss.

Democrats retained their heavy majority on the board; Republicans' only winner was Beane.

Democrats running without opposition in the general election were Garrett, Herbert "Junior" Milton of Granite City in District 22, Frank Dutko of Madison in District 24, Robert Stille of Edwardsville, Anthony Bosich and Anthony Paynic, both of Wood River, and Richard Worthen and Darrell Riley, both of Alton.

Good luck to these men as they ponder many tough decisions in running Madison County government.

'Tis the season to be thankful

To the editor:

In everything, give thanks.

It's easy for us to say thanks when our storehouse overflows. Just how long this will last, the good Lord only knows. But when we check our list and find the shelves sort of blank, can we lift our eyes toward Heaven and offer a word of thanks?

When will the faces of our family and our friends wear smiles? Yes, it is easy then to praise the Lord for his goodness all the while.

But when things go wrong and we're down and out, it seems that everything has changed. Again, can we truly look to God and say thanks for everything?

But, let us give thanks for everything as we enter the season of Thanksgiving. Let us prove we are thankful by our actions.

'Trickle down' theory hits home

To the editor:

Many railroads have been merged across the country. Profits of those remaining have been improved and increased.

What trickled down to the public was the elimination of many jobs, reduction of services to the public and total elimination of services to many communities. This was the direct cause of the shutdown of American Steel Foundries in Granite City.

We are seeing the same thing happen in the airline industry. The airline mergers have reduced services and competition. The TWA takeover of Ozark Airlines is a good example. Jobs have been eliminated and there has been much concern about the safety of the planes.

The corporate raiders do all they can to gain millions for their next takeover with no concern for the public.

Ivan Boscky and all of those Wall

Street types have no concern for anyone but their own wealth and power. The only thing that will trickle through their fingers is what they have to pay off to those involved in their schemes.

Many millions of ordinary consumers must purchase the necessities of life and the profits trickle up to the rich.

The labor and efforts of many millions are what in turn provide the means of wealth for the minority few. Historically, the wealthy and powerful have never been known to be generous to the masses. The struggles of mankind to improve his lot has been never ending.

To believe that giving more to the wealthy and powerful will result in their sharing more with the masses is the same as believing in fantasy fairy tales.

Jaycees aided by many people

To the editor:

We, the Granite City Jaycees, say "Thank you" to the merchants who donated candy and fruit to our 10th annual Haunted House held Oct. 27-31.

Those who helped included K mart, Schnucks, National, Cohen's and Jerry's Produce.

They all helped to make this event a great success for the people of Granite City.

We are also thankful to some outstanding young people of Granite City. They came to help put this event together from the very start, and worked in the Haunted House every night that we were open to the public.

This list includes John Vitale, Chris Earhart, Gary Earhart, Lisa Knuckles, Mike Garcia, Ronnie McCoy, John McCoy, Nelson Dunlap, Tracy Dunlap, Amy Urbeck and Christ Womack. If it had not been for these people, the event would not have been such a great success.

To the people of our great town who turned out for this event, we hope to see all of you next year.

Missing a holiday

Enjoy this Thanksgiving holiday, it may be your last.

Commercial moguls have decided that the holiday is no longer necessary. I wasn't privy to their conversation, but the little mouse that occasionally scampers across my desk was the following tale.

Scene: posh surroundings of an advertising agency somewhere in the bowels of Madison Avenue. Players: two corporate execs, discussing the season.

Van Tripe: "I don't care what J.C. says, Smathers, I'm all for doing away with this Thanksgiving nonsense."

Smathers: "But, sir, the American public demands a continuation - after all, it's truly one of the all-American holidays."

Van Tripe: "I realize that, but we're going to have to drop something out of the calendar. We're going to start Christmas shopping sales two weeks before Halloween. Why, that's more the American way than celebrating the holiday itself."

Smathers: "But, sir, what about the traditional start of the shopping season? That's always the Friday after Thanksgiving."

Van Tripe: "That's another thing I was wanting to bring up. We've made a decision around here that the start of the Christmas shopping season will now be Feb. 3."

Smathers: "Feb. 3, sir?"

Van Tripe: "Yes, the day after Groundhog's Day. How better to remember it, heh, heh."

Smathers: "But what about the turkeys, sir? Butterball and Kretschmar won't like us passing up their big day, I'm afraid."

Van Tripe: "Nonsense! With the right kind of promotion we can sell twice as many of those birds on Veterans Day."

Smathers: "Uh, yes, I guess you're right, sir. Still, it kind of bothers me that we won't have much of a chance to be thankful in 1989. Guess I'll start doing that on New Year's. Is their anything else then, sir?"

Van Tripe: "Well, now that you mention it, Smathers, yes. It's about this Christmas thing."

Smathers: "Christmas, sir?"

Van Tripe: "Yes, we're going to be moving that to July, when it's not so cold...."

APC's fertilizer storage complex

APC purchases fertilizer complex

GRANITE CITY — A fertilizer and storage complex has been acquired by APC Warehouse Co., Granite City, from International Minerals and Chemicals, which will continue to move fertilizer through the complex.

APC Warehouse is a member of The Delivery Network, based in Granite City. The complex, in Granite City, consists of 650 feet of conveyor, three domed dry-fertilizer storage buildings and three 1 million gallon liquid fertilizer storage tanks. Each of the buildings is 116 feet in diameter, 50 feet high, and capable of holding up to 7,500 tons. The facility is expected to handle more than 100,000 tons of fertilizer a year.

In addition to IMC, Davis Water and Waste Industries Inc. is expected to be a major user of the facility.

The Delivery Network, formerly Fox Industries, is a leading enterprise in cargo handling in the Midwest.

The firm operates more than 1 million square feet of public warehousing facilities, a long-haul trucking company, a drayage operation and a river terminal and is the operator of Foreign Trade Zone 31 under a special agreement with the Tri-City Regional Port District.

Christmas Coke bottle back in stores

GRANITE CITY — It's going to be a Christmas filled with Coca-Cola, if Henry A. Schimberg, president, Johnston Coca-Cola Bottling Group, has anything to do with it.

A special version of the patented 6½-ounce glass Coca-Cola "Christmas" bottle, the world's most famous commercial package, is available at selected retail outlets for the first time in more than 50 years. The name comes from its patent date: Dec. 25, 1922. It has not been sold in the United States since 1937.

The special holiday case package features Coca-Cola Classic in replicas of the original Christmas bottle as it was sold between 1922 and 1937. The bottles are in four six-pack carriers that are replicas of those used in the 1920s, with the 1937 advertising theme: "Sign of Good Taste."

They are packages in a corrugated crate case that is a replica of the wooden crate case first used by Coca-Cola bottlers in the 1920s.

The combination makes this a great gift item or one to keep," Schimberg said. "The package is destined to become a collector's item."

The original Christmas bottle was returnable. The 1988 version is not.

About real estate

By Don Campbell

Interest rate view depends on buyer

Dear Mr. Campbell: You suggested recently that a reader should lean toward a fixed-rate mortgage because of today's "relatively low interest rates." I don't know what kind of crystal ball you may have for predicting interest rates, but history indicates that today's prevailing rates are relatively high.

According to a chart on the rates of U.S. government securities (on which most adjustable rates are based), only in the past 10 years have interest rates been above the 9 percent level for the long treasuries. Furthermore, during the period when interest rates first shot above 9 percent, inflation was at a far higher level than it is today.

While I disagree with your reasoning, I do not disagree with your advice to seek a fixed-rate mortgage. If rates should happen to rise dramatically you would be protected. If rates drop significantly you could refinance to lock in a lower rate.

J.T. Answer: "High," "low" — everything is relative. Historically, of course, you are right. Today's interest rates are "high" and double-digit mortgage rates, sure enough, were virtually unknown more than 10 years ago. Interest rates were so stable that they were engraved in stone. Banks charged 3 percent or 4 percent for loans and paid 2 percent interest on savings.

But think back for a minute over those 10 years. In that period we saw mortgage rates go up to 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 percent. Although, for practical purposes, the mortgage market simply dries up above 13 percent. I think you would be surprised at the volume of my mail from home buyers who, sure enough, still are paying 12 or 13 percent.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We purchased our home on a 30-year mortgage and paid off the mortgage 14 years and four months later. I would like to know if we should get a refund on the interest for the balance of 15 years and six months?

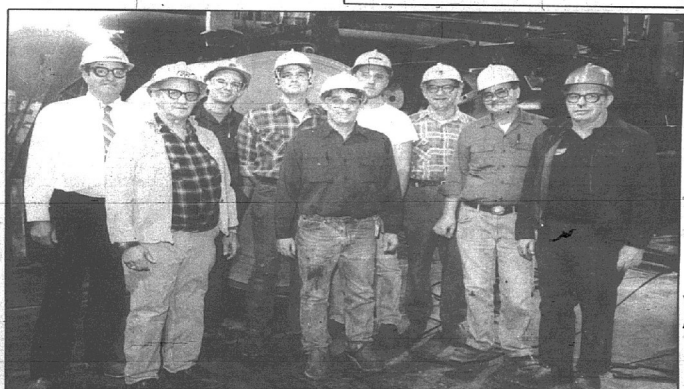

R.S. Answer: It is a fascinating thought to dwell on — that you have a rebate coming from someone having paid the mortgage off in half the allotted time. Unfortunately, it does not work that way.

You didn't give me any figures, but let's say you took on a $50,000 mortgage at 8 percent. Your payments would have been $366.88 a month for principal and interest. Let's round it out and say you accelerated the payments enough to pay it off in 15 years, instead of 30 years.

If you had not accelerated your payments you would have ended up paying $132,080, a full $82,080 of which would have gone for the lender's interest. By paying it off in 15 years, you paid a total of $86,080 for your $50,000 loan and, of that, $36,080 went for interest. So you saved a cool $46,072 by doing what you did.

2 GC Steel galvanizing lines set all-time records

GRANITE CITY — Record operations in production and yield performance were reported by the Granite City Division of National Steel Corp. on its No. 6 and No. 7A Galvanizing Lines recently.

No. 6 Line set an all-time prime yield performance record in October of 102.4 percent. Its actual yield of 94.5 percent was the best ever recorded and its operating performance of 115.6 percent was the highest since June 1986.

The delay rate of 2.7 percent was the lowest since May 1986, the scrap loss was the lowest since October 1986 and the zinc performance of 105.3 percent was above plan.

No. 7A Line set two new daily production records — 822 tons on Nov. 4 and 892 tons on Nov. 5. The previous record was 818 tons, set Dec. 11, 1986. Its yield performance improved to 99 percent, the highest point in 1988.

Its operating performance of 101.5 percent was the highest since May 1987. On the 11 to 7 turn of Oct. 18, an 8-hour galvanize production of 304 tons tied the record set Dec. 1, 1984.

As part of the cooperative Partnership Program of the division's 1986 United Steelworkers/National Steel labor agreement, employee groups of both hourly and salary workers were formed earlier this year to study mill operations and make recommendations to improve yield on the galvanizing lines. Granite City Division is one of three National Steel divisions.

The resulting labor-management communications and problem-solving partnership, along with shop floor cooperation, has been the basic contributing factor to successful improvements in the company's galvanizing operation, according to Jim Eickmeier, manager coated products.

National Steel is the nation's sixth largest steelmaker, with other production facilities in Ecorse, Mich., and Portage, Ind. National Steel is headquartered in Pittsburgh and employs 12,000 people. It is operated as a joint venture corporation owned equally by National Intergrupp Inc., Pittsburgh, and NKK Corporation of Japan.

Fireplace fires beautiful, but chimney fires can be deadly

By Randy Lleson
Chimney Sweep
Chimney Cleaning

GRANITE CITY — At this time of year, everyone loves to spend an evening in front of a beautiful, crackling fire.

But as beautiful as a fireplace is, it can also be a dangerous and deadly time.

The beginning of the fireplace season is the most dangerous time for chimney fires. Creosote that may have built up in the chimney over years of neglect, or even over a single year, can suddenly catch fire from such a simple matter as a newspaper fire sending up flames from the fire box to the damper.

Creosote burns very quickly. In a matter of seconds the fire can spread up through the fuel wall and create a draft that makes the fire burn even hotter.

At this point, the average chimney fire begins to roar and howl like a forest fire. It sounds like a rocket taking off from the living room.

As the creosote burns it peels and curls off the inside walls of the chimney, exposing the inside wall to tremendous heat. The blazing creosote drips into the flue in the form of red-hot fire balls that are whisked up the chimney by a tremendous updraft and thrown out onto the roof.

It is these fireballs that, along with the heat being generated, put the entire house in danger of being destroyed by fire.

In a chimney fire, the first thing to do is call the fire department.

The next thing is to take a fire extinguisher (every fireplace should have one) and put out the fire in the fire box. This will remove the source of heat from the bottom of the fire.

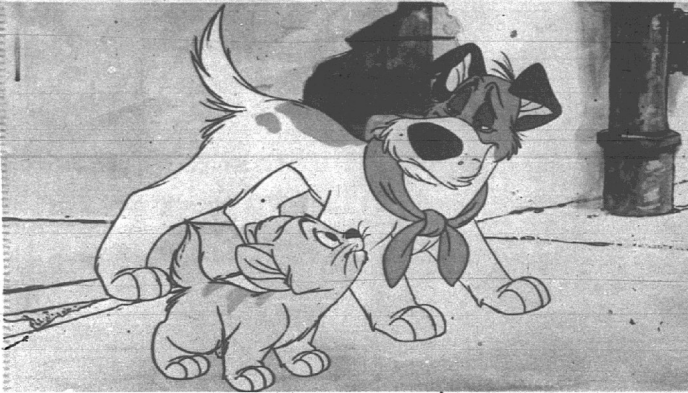

Then quickly cover the fireplace opening with a wet blanket to keep soot and smoke out of the house.

If lucky, it is possible to escape with only minimal smoke damage.

The easiest and best way to combat a chimney fire is to have the chimney cleaned by a reputable chimney sweep prior to lighting the first fire of the season.

ABANDONED ON the busy streets of New York, Oliver is instructed in the ways of street savor faire by his new friend Dodger.

Disney's 'Oliver' a slick, frolicking animated movie

By Frank Hunter
Staff affiliate

The Walt Disney folks have outdone themselves with "Oliver & Company" (very good) the studios' slick, good-humored update of the Charles Dickens story.

The film focuses on an orphaned cat (Oliver) befriended by some raffish pickpocket dogs based around by Dodger, a cool Manhattan canine who reports to a decidedly human Fagin.

When a little girl from Fifth Avenue picks up Oliver and takes him uptown for a romp with the rich folks, Fagin's malevolent boss, Bill Sykes kidnaps both of them and does everything he can to keep Oliver from enjoying his customary nine lives.

The rest of the delightful fable finds Oliver's pals coming to his rescue in a series of bold and funny strokes dreamed up by director George Scribner, a Disney studio animator and yarn-spinner. Scribner supervised a team of more than 300 artists and technicians who worked for nearly three years fashioning the hand-drawn feature from more than a million story sketches and drawings.

The film tells the story strictly from a dog's viewpoint. The hip dialogue and thoroughly modern musical score add a heap of zest to the film and the voices selected are ideal.

Comedian Dom DeLuise does the vocals for the wily Fagin, Robert Loggia is the menacing Sykes, Joey Lawrence of television's "Gimme a Break!" plays the cocky Oliver, and Joel is Dodger, as New York-like a pooch as you'll meet anywhere.

Georgette, a stylish Park Avenue poodle and one of the funnier characters, is voiced outrageously by Midler, and Chooch Marin handles the vocals for the hot-eyed Chihuahua Tito.

Roscoe Lee Browne does the talking for a smug bulldog, Sheryl Lee Ralph is the tough-talking street pooch Rita, and Richard Mulligan plays the stupid but engaging mutt Einstein.

If "Oliver & Company" does nothing else, it proves the durability of the Dickens novel and the genius of the artists laboring in the Disney studios.

If the kids don't come home from this jolly outing in a merry mood, we're all done for.

Rated G. Running time: 70 minutes.

No primrose path to stardom for actress Sigourney Weaver

By Harry Hamlin
Staff affiliate

Sometimes very good actresses have trouble reaching stardom. That certainly is the case with Sigourney Weaver.

Weaver presently stars in "Gorillas in the Mist," the biographical film on the life of late animal rights activist and researcher Dian Fossey.

Describing a childhood in which she looks back and remembers herself as "a tall, clumsy and awkward kid," the 6-foot-tall Weaver (whose real first name is Susan — she christened herself Sigourney while a student at a private girls' school in Connecticut) grew up amid the privileged class of Manhattan's Upper East Side.

Her father, Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, was president of NBC-TV and is credited in many circles as being a true visionary in the early days of television in the 1950s. Weaver's mother, Elizabeth Inglis, was an English stage actress.

"My mother and I used to fight all the time and at the time I thought we had an absolutely terrible relationship," Weaver says. "However, now that I look back on it, my mother and I were actually pretty normal in our relationship, just a little more vocal, perhaps."

"My father and I have always been very close. He was and is a major influence on my life and continues to give me the best advice I get from anyone, but only if I ask. He even helped support me financially when I was living on my own in New York and couldn't find work."

Weaver married stage director Jim Simpson after they met in 1981 while working at the Williamstown Theater Festival in Massachusetts.

Weaver may be best known for her work as Ripley in the films "Alien" in 1979 and the sequel "Aliens" in 1986. For the latter, she received an Academy Award nomination for best actress.

But Weaver, 39, has seemed to finally discover the role she has been waiting for as Dian Fossey.

"I am very disappointed that I never had the opportunity to know Dian, but I've researched her work and seen so much film and tape of her at her camp and working with the gorillas in her Rwanda research center that I truly feel like I know her," Weaver says.

"One thing that bothers me, though, is that I can't help but feel Dian would have thought we have made her story too 'Hollywood' for her tastes," she says. "I'm told that she liked the idea of a movie being made about her work. After all, her whole life was devoted to preservation of the species against poachers. But somehow, putting it all up on a screen, larger than life, tends to sometimes blow it out of proportion."

"But I'm satisfied with the film. I know we have helped her cause and what she stood for, besides making a damn good motion picture."

Work on "Gorillas in the Mist" began July 2, 1987, in the Virunga Mountains of central Africa. The film's eight-week shooting schedule was met and the picture did not go over budget, a feat director Michael Apted refers to as a "major miracle in the jungle."

His star is ambivalent about being called an "actress."

"Meryl (Streep) was a year behind me at Yale and she certainly has the gift," Weaver says. Just look at her work. Me, on the other hand, I had to learn it and I'm still learning.

"Whatever acclaim I get is fine, but I'm not a natural when it comes to acting. In fact, I'm not sure I even like the word 'actress.' To me, it makes you sound like just another hired hand on the set. Through my work, I want to contribute something that is important. To me, that's more than being known as just an actress."

Weaver just completed work on "Working Girl" with Harrison Ford and Melanie Griffith, a comedy directed by Mike Nichols scheduled for release before the end of the year.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and faint horizontal lines near the top edge. The binding edge on the left is visible, showing the stitching or glue of the book's spine.

Avoided summer shortfall

ICC study says Clinton helped utility

Illinois Power would have experienced a critical shortfall in meeting customer needs for electricity this summer if the Clinton Power Station's generating capacity had not been available, according to a study submitted to the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The study also suggests that many farms and factories in Illinois would have suffered if the utility had adopted a proposal from the Citizens Utility Board.

Additionally, there might have been a violation of federal law if Illinois Power had embraced the CUB plan to curtail service to rural electric cooperatives, the utility asserted.

The company "could not have generated enough electricity to meet customer needs on 44 days this summer without Clinton," the study concludes.

"On at least 12 days, when we could not have purchased supplementary power from neighboring utilities, we would have been forced to curtail service to 88 major industrial customers," said James E. McDonald, Illinois Power director of corporate communications, summarizing the study. In addition, power to nine municipalities would have been interrupted on six of these 12 days."

The summer of 1988 broke temperature and drought records and produced customer demand levels not expected until 1989.

Based on the actual 1988 peak demand, reached Aug. 16, the "traditional reserve margin" without Clinton would have been an unacceptably low 1.46 percent, a level significantly below the industry standards of 15-20 percent, IP contended.

CUB has said that if Illinois Power had discontinued electric service to two major rural electric cooperatives — Soyland and Western Illinois Power Cooperative — and to some of the utility's industrial customers during last summer's heatwave, the Clinton station would not have been needed.

However, Section 205 of the Federal Power Act requires approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission before a utility terminates service to wholesale customers.

The study points out that "the company is unaware of any case in which a public utility was allowed by the FERC to abandon electric service when the customer objected to the termination."

IP has been providing electricity for the past 46 years to Soyland and WIPCO, which serve about 50,000 rural customers.

"Thousands of farm families who make up the rural co-ops surely would have objected if we had disrupted their service during the hottest weather in Illinois history," McDonald said.

The study said Clinton has the lowest operating cost of any power plant in the utility's system because nuclear fuel is more economical than other fuels. Consequently, Clinton is used to meet customer needs before fossil fuel generating plants are used.

The addition of the Clinton station enabled the company to avoid the purchase of power from other utilities — power usually three to five times more expensive than electricity generated by a nuclear unit.

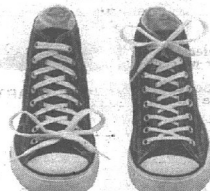

"Clinton has performed exceptionally well in its first year," McDonald said. "We know that. Our critics, who often play the role of cool-weather-quarterbacks, should know it, too."

Cage Warriors start road back from 4-21

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Don Deterding hopes the Warrior basketball team can improve. Coming off a four-win season, that shouldn't be too hard.

The winter of 1988 was long, cold and dark. Especially dark. A 13-game losing streak that seemed to last forever was the lowlight of a 4-21 campaign. But among all the defeats, lots of young players gained valuable experience.

As a result, the 1988-89 Warriors will be rich in experience — something they were sorely lacking a year ago.

"The experience gained by four of our starters is a big help," said Deterding. "We can be competitive with just about everybody. If we can stay away from injuries, we'll be all right. We won't be world beaters and we won't win state, but we should be better."

They would be even better with Shawn Tripp, who at 6-3 would have provided some valuable rebounds. But he is ineligible and will likely miss the whole season. Still, four other starters return. Juniors Matt Cook and John VanBuskirk, and seniors Kory Burton and Mike Wilkinson will combine with senior Jeff Schaefer as the starting five when the Warriors open the season Friday at noon against St. Gregory in the Crimson Classic in Jacksonville.

"Obviously, we have a lack of size," said Deterding, whose yard stick is working just fine. Cook is 5-9; VanBuskirk, Wilkinson and Schaefer are 6-1. Burton is the giant at 6-2.

"I've probably have had teams this small, but never any smaller," Deterding said. "But I think we can shoot and I think we can score."

"Whether we can stop anybody on defense remains to be seen. That's not because we have poor defensive players. But if we give up second and third shots because of rebounding, we're going to get hurt. And there's not much we can do about that."

The Warriors aren't going to pound the ball inside for too many layups and dunks, so they'll need to hit from the outside. Fortunately, there are some marksmen in the crowd. Cook exploded onto the scene midway through his sophomore year with a 27-point performance against Alton built entirely on nine three-pointers. In 18 games, he averaged 11.6 points and was 56 of 131 from three-point range (43 percent). He was also an 85 percent free throw shooter.

"Matt has learned to drive to the basket and handle the ball a little better," said Deterding.

VanBuskirk was the point guard as a sophomore and averaged 7.5 points and 4.4 assists. But he frequently got into foul trouble.

"Johnny's awful quick, without a doubt the fastest player we have," Deterding said. "But he wanted to use that all the time and it got him into trouble. It's getting better."

Wilkinson was one of only two players (Kevin Sanders was the other) who started last season with any varsity experience. Bothered by two bad ankles, he averaged 10.3 points and was 23 of 66 (35 percent) from three-point range.

Mike can be an outstanding shooter from 15-18 feet," Deterding said. "And having him play on two good ankles will be a big help."

Don Deterding

Burton averaged 5.2 points and 4.8 rebounds last year.

"Kory is a notoriously slow starter," said Deterding. "But he has been playing well in practice. I hope he can keep that up."

Schaefer quickly earned the fifth starting spot when Tripp was ruled ineligible.

"He can get his hands on more dagdum passes than anybody I've ever seen," Deterding said. "And he really works hard. We tried one other player at Tripp's spot, but Jeff moved in and nailed down that spot pretty fast."

First off the bench will be three seniors: 6-3 Dan Niles, 6-1 Andy Lampitt and 6-1 Mike Diller. Dave Wickman, a 6-4 junior, could also help by mid-season.

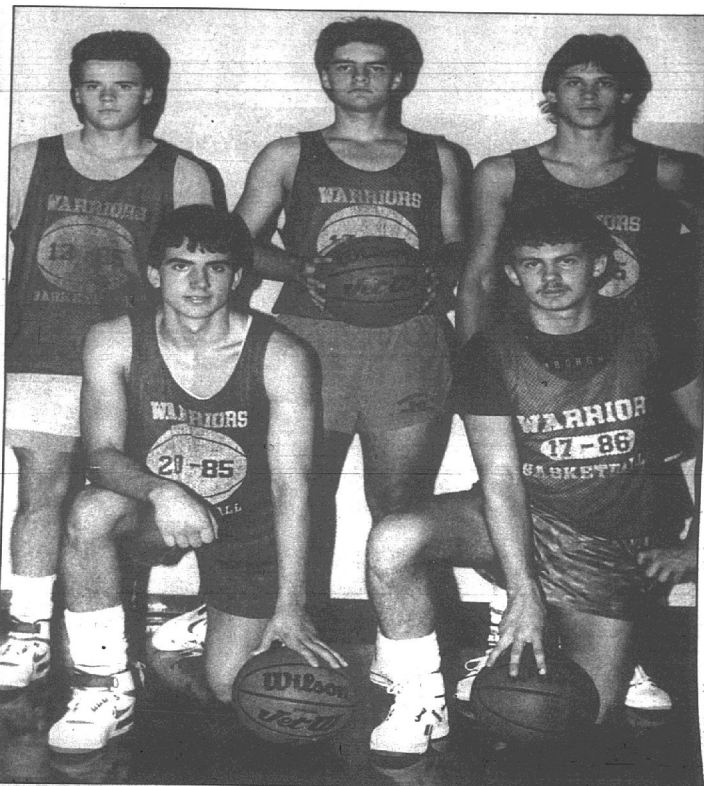

"I'll mention him just because we could use someone with a little size," Deterding said.

The scoring will be balanced, or so Deterding hopes. "Schaefer should be able to get his 10-11 points by the end of the year," he said. "And we have passed the ball extremely well, something we did not do last year."

"We're going to have to be cute on defense. We will vary defenses, and that's totally against my philosophy. I have the old Collinsville philosophy that you master one defense and play it all the time. But we can't do that."

Deterding rates Belleville West as the favorite in the

Wrestlers pin hopes on seven lettermen

The Warrior wrestling team returns plenty of talent from last season. Following is a capsule summary of the accomplishments of the top seven:

Todd Hutchinson (Jr.): Was 36 as a sophomore (40-17 in his career) at 90 pounds. He led the team in major decision with seven and took first in the Granite City Holiday Tournament and the House Springs Quad. But he finished fourth in the regional and this season was over quickly in the post-season. He will move up to 112 pounds this year. Second-team all-conference choice.

Bryan Pritchett (Sr.): Was 19-1-1 last year at 119, with a victory in the St. Charles Tournament and a third in the regional to advance to the sectional. A first-team all-conference selection, his season was highlighted by a victory over Nate Mosley, a two-time Missouri state champion from McCluer North. He'll stay at 119 this year.

Brent Davis (Sr.): A two-time state qualifier, he was 37-4 last year and is 97-18 in three years. He led last year's team in pins (15), points (200), technical falls (9) and wins (37). He was first in the holiday tournament, the House Springs Quad and the St. Charles Tournament. The first team all-conference selection took second in the regional and first in the sectional, but lasted only one match at state in the 112-pound class. Will move up to 125 pounds this year.

Jerold Moss (Sr.): Was 16-10 with six pins and 71 team points, and won in the 132-pound class at the House Springs Quad. Will be out at least a month with a first-degree shoulder separation. Will wrestle at 130 pounds. Honorable mention all-conference.

Rich Fenoglio (Sr.): Was 23-3 with 103 team points and tied with Davis for team lead in superior decisions with three. He took first in the 138 class in the House Springs Quad and was the Warriors' only regional champion. A second-team all-conference choice, he'll wrestle at 145 this year.

Dan Grayson (Sr.): Was 19-13 at 155 with 13 pins and 97 points. Won at the House Springs Quad and was a second-team all-conference choice.

Dale Hutson (Sr.): Was 24-9 stepping in for Ross Karbanski in the heavyweight class with 13 pins and 124 points. He won at the St. Charles and was a second-team all-conference choice.

GRANITE CITY — February.

It's most often thought of as the last month on the sports calendar. Football is over and baseball isn't here yet. Basketball and hockey are into the dog days of their seasons before the playoffs.

But for a high school wrestling coach and his team, February is THE month. It's when all the hard work pays off — or doesn't pay off. For Mike Garland and the Warrior wrestlers, it's hoped that February 1989 will deliver a bigger payoff than last year.

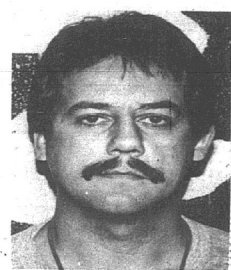

"Come February, whether you're 30-0 or 0-30 in dual meets really doesn't matter," said Garland, starting his second season as head coach. "People don't want to know how good a regular season you had. They want to know how you did in February, how you did at the state tournament. That's what we spend all year preparing for to be ready to do well in February."

The Warrior wrestling program just continues to roll on steadily, from Red Schmitt to Walt Whitaker to Garland. It doesn't matter. Any list of the area's top teams has to include Granite City. It should be no different this winter. The season opens tonight when the Warriors compete in a quad meet at Edwardsville with the host Tigers, Centralia and Carbondale beginning at 6:15 p.m.

"We're working real hard," said Garland, who had a total of 70 wrestlers out for the team. "We would like to get to state as a team. And I think we have a better opportunity to do that this year. And we have a number of kids who have a strong chance of advancing to state as individuals."

The list would include seven returning lettermen: Todd Hutchinson, Bryan Pritchett, Brent Davis, Jerold Moss, Rich Fenoglio, Dan Grayson and Dale Hutson. All are seniors except Hutchinson, who is a junior.

"Davis can be as good as he wants," said Garland, who will be assisted again by Steve Cavanaugh. Garland's brother Greg also joins the coaching staff. "If he goes up to state with the right attitude, he could do very well. Brent was beaten in the first round up there as a sophomore, so I thought he would be over that last year. But there were three returning state champions in his class and he might have overlooked the freshman that beat him because he was going to face one of the defending champions next.

"It's a head game with most of them. It all depends on what happens on that particular day. There are a lot of ifs and maybes. I'm really looking for Hutchinson, for example, to have a much better February."

Weight classes have changed this year. The new divisions now are 103, 112, 119, 125, 130, 135,

4 Bowland bowlers get Junior Archway honors

Bowland Lanes announces recent honors for four bowlers in the Junior Archway.

Doug Buehrer, 15, is the Bowler of the Year in the Masters Division. Buehrer is the son of Dave and Patti Buehrer of Granite City and he is a sophomore at Granite City High School. Doug qualified in eight of nine tournaments with a year-end average of 218. He has won one tournament and finished second in three others.

Buehrer began bowling at age 10 and has been bowling in the local program for five years. His high game of record is 280. Bowlers in the Masters Division must have an average of 185 or more.

John Coziar, 14, a freshman at GCHS, is the Bowler of the Year in the Majors Division. He is the son of John and Jan Coziar of Granite City and has been a high qualifier twice. His high game of record is 288 with a high series of 750 (277, 257 and 238). Coziar has qualified in seven of nine tournaments, finishing first three times and second once.

This is Coziar's first year in Junior Archway, and he has advanced from the Majors Division with a beginning average of 150-160 to the Masters Division with a final season average of 193.

Scott Mann of Collinsville, a student at BAC, was recognized as the Most Improved Bowler by bowling 20 pins over average in the Masters Division. He has placed first in one of every eight tournaments, finishing the season with a 196 average. Mann's high game of record is 267 with a high series of 771. He has bowled for three years in Junior Archway.

Stacy Kukulajan of Florissant, Mo., is the Most Improved Bowler in the Classic Division by bowling 16 pins over average. She qualified in one out of five tournaments and finished with a season average of 183. Stacy has bowled for three years in Junior Archway.

The Junior Archway was founded in 1970 with the hope that it would fulfill the need for competition among this area's better young bowlers. The goal is to train junior bowlers for future competition through the sportsmanship, competitive pressure and enjoyment the game can provide. It has grown to more than 300 members and conducts nine tournaments each year.

Eligible bowlers must have an average of 150 or more and bowl in a sanctioned junior league. Junior Archway is under the guidance of Mary Cowan. Bowland Lanes will host a Junior Archway tournament in May 1989. The Bowland junior league is under the direction of Shirley Byrd.

Tri-City Speedway has new owner

By Joe Senter
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Harry Alton Jr. of Springfield has purchased the 31-acre Tri-City Speedway.

Alton, a highway building contractor, purchased the well-known auto racing facility from Elvis and Florence Doolin, the long-time owners and operators. The speedway was built in 1961 and has hosted some of the best auto racing in the country for the past 28 summers.

The Doolins will remain at the track as managers when it opens again in April. Elvis will oversee the racing areas while Florence tends to the concession areas. The speedway has a unique setup with two tracks — a 1/4-mile dirt track on the inside and a 1/4-mile dirt track on the outside.

Alton will be bringing many special events to speedway such as sprint cars, midgets and motorcycles. Alton plans to make many improvements at the speedway. He will call a meeting in December to discuss cars and rules.

The present plans are to run the same racing program as in the past, with the weekly program of late model stock cars, sportsman's cars and street stock cars. The track has been rated by national racing magazines as one of the best-run tracks in the nation.

For more information on the track, call Alton at 217-733-1613 or write to P.O. Box 3305, Springfield, Ill., 62704. Or call Joe Senter at 931-3504.

140, 145, 152, 160, 171, 189 and 275. The top candidates in each class are:

freshman Mark McKechnan and freshman Ryan King.
112: Hutchinson and sophomore Brian Kershaw.
119: Pritchett.

125: Davis.

160: Grayson.
171: Juniors Bryan Neidhardt and Brad Massey, and sophomore Tom Moss.
189: Junior Larry Hahne.
275: Hutson and senior Rocky Moss.

Others like junior Craig Laboray and sophomore Gary Bazzel could contend.
"We've had some weird things happen," Garland said. "Bazzel has been out sick and Laboray had a cyst under his arm. And we've had the flu bug going around. But it's better for all this to happen now than in February."

The Warriors have only two dual meets at home this year, and the only other home action is the holiday tournament Dec. 26-27.

"I don't like that," Garland said. "I didn't know about it until I saw the schedule. But we can't do anything about it. We could use it to our advantage. We'll be on the road at tournament time, so we'll be used to it. And the way we look at it, I told the guys if they want to wrestle at home they can win the regional and host the team sectional here."

The Warriors were 15-9-1 last year with victories in the House Springs Quad and the St. Charles Tournament. They were second to Cahokia in the Granite City Holiday Tournament and second to Cahokia in the regional. The Warriors had the most first-team all-Southwestern Conference selections with four. Among the talent lost to graduation are Rich Smallie, Scott Moss and Terry Stanley.

The Warriors will face stiff competition again from Cahokia, Edwardsville and the Belleville schools.
"We have a lot of talent coming back, but so do they," Garland said. "Our big problem last year was getting pinned. If we could have avoided pins, we might have only lost one or two meets. We were beating Francis Howell 31-10 with four matches to go. We got pinned four times and lost. Some pins are because of holds you just can't avoid, but often it's just a matter of gutting it out."

The post-season is a little different this year. The team sectional and team state meet will wait until the individual portion of the season is completed. The individual state meet will be Feb. 17-18, with the team sectional Feb. 21 and the team state meet Feb. 24-25.

February Fever will be high by then.

Christmas puppies can be mixed blessing

By Sandy Ganz
Staff affiliate

Those deciding to bring a new dog home for Christmas should be reminded that puppies are a mixed blessing.

If you have not had one in your home for a while, you forget too easily just how much work they are. Of course, they also are adorable, playful, willing to learn — and so cuddly.

We recently told a longtime and very good friend that we would raise and socialize one of his puppies for a while. She is quite beautiful and has lots of energy and charm. But yesterday was another story.

We began the day by discovering that this energetic furry fireball had chewed a small section of the wall through the wire crate in which she spends the night. At 6 a.m. we were perturbed, but realized that we had repaired similar misdemeanors in the past with spackle and paint.

Midmorning, the tiny one, Baby by name, accompanied Billy, Poppy and me to an enormous field that is about five minutes driving time from home. All three dogs had a grand opportunity to run hard.

I waited until their pace slackened and they appeared sufficiently tucked out to take them home. Somehow, I deluded myself into believing that all the fresh air and running would take the edge off Baby's energy. No such luck.

She spent the afternoon regressing from all the house-training that we thought was becoming a well-established habit. Even though we took her outside to her favorite spot, she decided that the basement and family room were more convenient potty spots. Little wonder she would not cooperate outside.

By late afternoon she had dragged a slipper out of my closet, whose door was partially open, and then joyfully pranced into the living room with my daughter's all-time favorite teddy bear. We retrieved both items unscathed.

Since she was having lapses in house-training, Babe was confined to the kitchen to be kept under close supervision while I prepared dinner. Her shenanigans were not over yet. Her next venture was to try the wallpaper next to the gate between the kitchen and family room. I did catch her in the act, and gave her a blasting "Aaaaah" and walked over to see a neatly removed piece of wallpaper. I suppose the 4-month-old puppy mind thinks that if she gnaws at the wall long enough, escape to the rest of the house would not be far behind.

By 10 p.m. we were wondering why we accepted the responsibility for raising this small hellion. As we watched television and she settled down in all her precious furriness, we remembered why puppies are so endearing. We passed her from one to the next of us so we could each have a chance to hold her warm and appealing self while she was too tired to squirm away.

Puppies learn quickly, but are likely to have a few regressions, just like little children. They are full of fun and will go along with just about any game you choose to play. On the other hand, pups younger than 6 months must be fed nutritional puppy food three times a day and must be taken outside to be house-trained at least once an hour. They require several visits to the vet for inoculations and regular checkups to be certain they are developing normally.

They should have many of their own "doggie" chewables such as squeakies, balls and specially treated bones, all of which must be large enough not to be swallowed accidentally or chewed to shreds. They need their own bed, a place to call their own so they can get away from it all at times. Lastly, they need attention in the form of being taken to many different places to become accustomed to different sights, sounds and smells, and accept them easily. Giving them attention also entails playing with them, teaching them manners, grooming and cuddling.

At 10:30 last night, Baby was taken outside for the last time that day, and then put into her crate. The crate had been moved away from the wall.

Behind the holiday songs of Johnny Marks

The late Johnny Marks wrote four of the most popular Christmas songs ever: "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" and "A Holly Jolly Christmas."

When Marks wrote his first draft of the song "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," he decided that it "was probably the worst song I ever wrote." He was so disgusted with it that he put it aside, and didn't go back to it again until the following year. The opening bars of the song were what bothered him the most.

One day, in 1949, while walking in Greenwich Village in New York, where he lived, he unexpectedly solved the problem. While humming the melody, he reversed the progression of the opening notes. Instead of having them descend, he began to hum the notes going up the scale.

The rest was easy. Later, when asked how long it took him to finish the new version, Marks said, "It took me only two weeks, but 20 years of songwriting to learn what to throw away."

Marks sent a demo of his new song to Gene Autry, as a possibility for his next recording session. But Autry ruled it out, saying he felt that it didn't fit his cowboy image. He was known for such western songs as "Tumbling Tumbleweeds," "South of the Border" and "Mexicali Rose."

However, Autry's wife Ina Mae loved the song, and asked him to record it as a favor to her. "Put it on the 'B' side," she said, "and put whatever you want on the 'A' side."

Autry took his wife's advice. And his recording of "Rudolph" went on to become the biggest hit of his career, and the biggest hit in the history of Columbia Records.

Autry's record of "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" was released on Sept. 19, 1949, shortly before Autry was to perform in the rodeo at New York's Madison Square Garden. By the time the rodeo was ready to open, the record was a hit, selling some 20,000 copies in one week — even though it was only early autumn.

Autry was not aware of the song's great success until Marks visited him at the rodeo rehearsal, and brought him the good news. As a result, Autry changed the finale of his show from "Ghost Riders in the Sky" to "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." It was the first live performance of the song.

Marks was known for writing both the words and music of songs. One exception was "I Hear the Bells on Christmas Day." For that song, he adapted a poem by the legendary American poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Bing Crosby was the first artist to record the song, and his 1956 recording was an instantaneous hit. Crosby, by this time, had become Marks' good friend, having also recorded "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" in 1950. It too was a big success.

One weekend in the autumn of 1956, Crosby came to New York to perform "I Heard the Bell on Christmas Day" on the "Ed Sullivan Television Show." During a break in the rehearsal, Marks visited Crosby in his dressing room backstage. When Marks walked in, Crosby's first words were: "Well Johnny, I see you finally got yourself a decent lyric writer."

When Decca Records was preparing to release Crosby's recording of "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," a secretary called Marks' publishing company to get information for the record label. "Of course we know who Johnny is," the secretary said, "but who is this Longfellow lyricist?"

Marks later composed "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" in the middle of the summer, while vacationing in Vermont. The fact is, he wrote many of his Christmas songs during the summer.

In this instance, he was sunbathing on a beach, and was taken with the beauty of the surrounding fir trees. At the same time, he saw some teen-agers dancing to rock music. This was in 1960, at the height of the rock 'n' roll era.

Marks thought of the fir trees and the rock music; and the association triggered an idea for a new song, "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree."

Marks thought Brenda Lee was ideally suited to record the new song. She also happened to be one of the hottest recording stars at the time. So, he approached the recording director of Decca Records, and said he had a song for her.

"Johnny, every songwriter in the world is calling me about a song for Brenda," said the exasperated executive. "But you, of all people. You don't even write rock music!"

Undeterred, Johnny insisted that the man just listen to his demo record. He did, and rushed off immediately to Nashville to record the song with Brenda. "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" became the biggest hit of her career.

"A Holly Jolly Christmas" is one of the songs from the score that Marks wrote for the "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" television special.

When Marks previewed the song for the advertising agency representing General Electric, the show's sponsor, they were delighted with the songs. That is, with one exception.

They were disturbed by the line "Have a cup of cheer," in the song "A Holly Jolly Christmas."

"You don't expect a company like General Electric to allow itself to be identified with a song that encourages people to drink, do you?" they protested.

Well, Johnny was adamant about not changing the line, and the ad agency finally gave in, keeping their fingers crossed that GE would not be upset.

Needless to say, the sponsor did not object. And both the song and the TV show were a huge success. In fact, the show has become the longest-running special in the history of television. 1988 will mark its 25th consecutive year on the air.

Burl Ives was Marks' first choice to record "A Holly Jolly Christmas." And he was indeed the first artist to record it, which he did while the "Rudolph" television special was still in the early stages of production.

Shortly after Ives made his recording, it was played for the executives at General Electric, the sponsor of the television special. They were so impressed with the record that they insisted that Burl Ives be signed as narrator and singing star for the television show.

Hitchcock offers more in video gifts

By Richard Zacks
Video reviewer
New York Times Syndicate

In 1974, a writer asked Alfred Hitchcock one of those end-of-the-world questions. You know, if a nuclear bomb were about to fall in your neighborhood and you could only take five films into the fallout shelter, which would you choose?

The master of the macabre replied that topping his list would be "Shadow of a Doubt" (1943, MCA, $29.95). Say what? Not his "Psycho" (1960, MCA, $19.95)? Or not his "Rear Window" (1954, MCA, $19.95)? That's right.

"Shadow of a Doubt," just released by MCA and the 44th of Hitchcock's 53 full-length features to appear on cassette, is a perfect example of one of the lesser-known Hitchcock titles that cry out for more attention. And there are others, such as "Under Capricorn" (1949, Vidamerica, $19.95), "Blackmail" (1929, public domain, prices vary) and "Young and Innocent" (1937, public domain, prices vary), to name a few.

People looking for videocassettes for holiday gifts see Sir Alfred titles by the armful: "The Birds" (1963, MCA, $19.95), "North by Northwest" (1959, MGM/UA, $19.95), "Vertigo" (1958, MCA, $19.95), etc., etc.

They figure they've seen 'em all. They should investigate their shopping choices further. Consider, for instance, at "Under Capricorn."

"It was generally panned but it really has a lot to recommend it," says Donald Spoto, one of the world's leading Hitchcock experts and author of "The Art of Alfred Hitchcock: Fifty Years of His Motion Pictures" (Dolphin, $13.95) and "The Dark Side of Genius: The Life of Alfred Hitchcock" (Ballantine, $4.95).

"It's Romeo and Juliet 20 years later," Spoto says enthusiastically of "Under Capricorn."

"It's what happens when you live out 'til death do us part.'"

"Under Capricorn," set in Sydney, Australia, catches up in middle age with the former stable boy (Joseph Cotten) who married the wealthy aristocrat (Ingrid Bergman). He was exiled to Australia for murder and she followed him, causing a humongous scandal. Critics hammered Hitchcock for using agonizingly long single-camera takes, but the drama, suspense and Bergman's otherworldly beauty still come through.

Also on Spoto's short list of underrated, overlooked Hitchcock is "Young and Innocent," which Spoto describes as "magnificent, benevolent, full of love." Be warned that it's a British film made in 1937, but if you listen closely you'll hear clever dialogue. A married couple takes a road trip to establish the husband's innocence of a murder, a crime being investigated by the bride's father, the chief of police.

Spoto also points to "Stage Fright" (1950, Warner, $59.95), which follows stage actors caught up in a murder and which Spoto terms "marvelous." Who is acting and who is guilty? Marlene Dietrich sings "I'm the Laziest Girl in Town."

Rounding out Spoto's list are "Blackmail," Britain's first talkie, and "Marnie" (1964, MCA, $19.95), starring Tippi Hedren and Sean Connery. The latter, claims Spoto, is Hitchcock's "last great masterpiece and not as well-known as it should be."

Some other lesser-known Hitchcocks worth blowing the dust off are: "I Confess" (1953, Warner, $59.95), starring Montgomery Clift as a priest who hears the confession of a murderer, then finds himself accused of the murder; the darkly clever "Strangers on a Train" (1951, Warner, $59.95), which provided the concept for Danny DeVito's "Throw Momma From the Train," i.e., I'll murder yours if you'll murder mine; and "The Trouble With Harry" (1955, MCA, $19.95), a one-joke, tongue-in-cheek movie about a corpse in a New England town.

Truly macabre and a fine debut for Shirley MacLaine.

But back to where we started, "Shadow of a Doubt." The story involves a charismatic and murderous Uncle Charlie (Joseph Cotten) who, to avoid the police, comes to live with his sister in Santa Rosa, Calif. Will his young niece, who idolizes him, find him out? "Like 'Vertigo,' Hitchcock gives away the ending almost immediately," says Spoto. "He's after a different kind of suspense, not whodunit or howdunit but what do you do with the knowledge that it is so."

If you buy "Shadow," try to put yourself in the shoes of the young niece. You'll find you're in for a rocky ride.

Other best bets: "Cinderella" (1950, Disney, $26.95). One of those animated classics. Also, a great revenge-on-sisters movie that helped originate the expression, "It's pumpkin time."

"Three Caballeros" (1943, Disney, $29.95). Super live-action/animation combo packed with songs but saddled with a hokey story line.

Tips for taking care of your Christmas tree

Selecting, trimming and caring for a real Christmas tree is a special and fun way for family members to spend quality time together during the holidays.

Here are tips from the experts at the National Christmas Tree Association on how to pick a fresh, natural Christmas tree and get the best value for your money.

Before you leave home, decide where you'll display your tree. That way, you'll be able to tell what height you need and whether all four sides need to be suitable for display.

The tree's freshness can be determined by two tests:

1. Take hold of a branch about 6 inches from the tip, between your thumb and forefinger. Pull your hand toward you and allow the branch to slip through your fingers.

The needles should adhere to the branch and not fall off in your hand.

2. Lift the tree a couple of inches off the ground and then bring it down abruptly on the stump end. The needles on the outside of the tree shouldn't fall off in large numbers.

It's OK if some of the needles on the inside fall off, as these turn brown and shed naturally each year anyway.

Before setting the tree up, cut about 1 inch from the base of the trunk. Place the tree immediately in a water-holding stand, and check the water supply daily.

Don't let the base of the tree dry out or a seal will form and a new cut will be necessary. A tree may drink a gallon of water in the first 24 hours.

Keep your Christmas tree cool.

Unplug lights when you leave home or go to bed. That way, nothing will interrupt your sweet dreams of sugar plums and other Christmas delights.

Jim and Doris Lyons of Trojan Nursery in rural Troy, who only sell live Christmas trees, offer the following tips for taking care of live trees.

The tree balls should be placed in one or two plastic bags and then placed in a tub or plastic pan. Put crumpled newspaper in the bag to level up the tree and hold moisture.

Add about one or 1½ gallons of water, and only keep the tree inside the house for a maximum of 14 days.

Add water as necessary, and if the temperature is below 20 degrees, place the tree in the garage one day before planting it in the yard.

Dig the hole early, before Christmas. The hole should be twice as wide as the tree ball and about the same depth as the tree ball.

Store the dirt in a wheelbarrow or plastic bag or box and put the tree in a garage or other dry place.

When Christmas is over, place the tree in the hole and fill the hole three-quarters full of dirt. Then add five to 10 gallons of water, depending on the size of the tree. Finish filling the hole and rewet. Then mulch with bark, straw or leaves.

Bring to the holiday table a special gift

By John Stahlman
Staff affiliate

I have lived through more Thanksgiving holidays than I can comfortably admit, and it is hard to make distinctions among them. The menus for the extravagant dinners were the same year after year. The blessings of family, freedom and health were cited in the dinner prayers each year. And the same hymns were sung in all those Thanksgiving worship services.

But among the Thanksgivings I have observed over several decades, I only remember the details of one Thanksgiving worship service. And it continues to inspire me. Best of all, it may suggest a unique Thanksgiving celebration for your family this year.

I had just ended a seven-year stint in the U.S. Army, reunited with my family after a yearlong separation, and was ready to live in one place. I was looking forward to a new career.

One of my eager expectations as a civilian and first-year seminary student centered on the prospect of regular worship in the traditions of just one denomination—mine. What I didn't realize was that my idea of worship was too narrow and too predictable for a seminary campus in the 1960s.

The Thanksgiving service in the seminary chapel was one of those that introduced me to a different style. It also gave me an unforgettable experience and a new way to express gratitude.

Everything was normal right up to the time for the sermon. And then worship turned from a spectator event into an invitation for participation. The preacher invited members of the congregation to bring something to the altar that symbolized a reason for gratitude.

A student slowly rose from the pew and approached the altar. As he pulled a brightly colored scarf from his pocket, he began telling the congregation about a man he met at the Volunteers of America rescue mission downtown. Bill, a regular at the mission, was a sober alcoholic and was blind. And he was a kind man who willingly became a friend of a seminary student. The student wondered aloud if he would ever inspire someone to be grateful, as Bill had inspired him.

Another student, my Army buddy and a former helicopter pilot, got up and took his place between the congregation and altar. Before he said anything, he removed a small gold pin from his coat lapel. As the pilot of a Sikorsky helicopter, he was one of the crew who had rescued a pilot from certain death off the shore of Korea. And the gold pin in the shape of an "S" was the badge of membership in a unique group of life savers. He was thankful that he had been used to save a life. But that gratitude was exceeded by his thankfulness that his spiritual life had been snatched from certain death.

One of the seminary professors took his turn placing a symbol of gratitude on the altar. His offering was a picture of Jeremiah crying as he looked over the city of Jerusalem. I don't remember what this professor of the Old Testament said, but I have not forgotten that picture of Jeremiah agonizing over the Jerusalem he loved.

Now that I have more experience and have witnessed the church both from pulpit and pew, I can guess that the professor expressed his gratitude for the church and the call to serve it. Or maybe he was thankful for people who care when they see others in difficulty.

I wasn't prepared, but if I had had a rubber band in my pocket I would have made it my offering as a symbol of my gratitude. Just one year earlier, my good friend had spent a night in the Michelin rubber plantation as an adviser to a Vietnamese unit. He was one of the few who lived to watch the sun rise. For that I was very thankful. And I still am.

Why not make this year's Thanksgiving dinner one to remember? Why not invite your children and table guests to bring something to the table that symbolizes their gratitude?

Buy camera, but learn how to use it

During this holiday season, take advantage of both the ease and convenience now offered by automatic cameras and the wide selection and versatility of films.

To ensure the success and fun of your picture-taking, here are a few tips.

- Make sure that you have plenty of film on hand so that you don't miss out on that impromptu caroling session.

- Try a high-speed film for those indoor shots where you would rather not use a flash.

After all, the advantage of a high-speed film is its ability to take pictures with less light.

- Try being inventive. By holding the camera vertically, you can cut out unimportant clutter around the edges, while including more of the subject in your photograph.

- Always squeeze the shutter release gently to help prevent blurry pictures.

- Highlight your pictures with color — including red stockings by the fireplace and sparkling gold and silver tree ornaments that will add excitement to your picture.

- Have reprints of your best picture made into truly personal greeting cards to share with family and friends.

- Don't forget to include yourself in some of the photographs.

'Story of the Star' offered at St. Louis Science Center

Only three wise men reported seeing it, but it is perhaps the most famous of celestial objects. The Star of Bethlehem continues to be shrouded in mystery, 20 centuries after the birth of Christ.

"The Story of the Star," opens Nov. 25 and runs through Dec. 31 at the McDonnell Star Theater at the St. Louis Science Center in Forest Park.

It is a 40-minute planetarium show that investigates the astronomical nature of the Star of Bethlehem. Along the way, the show looks at a variety of holiday symbols such as mistletoe, Christmas trees and the candles of the Hanukkah menorah.

The McDonnell Star Theater's special projection systems are used to view the skies over Bethlehem during the period when Jesus was born.

Several possible explanations for the star are explored, including bright meteors, comets, supernovae and groupings of planets and stars.

The show is recommended for children age 7 and older and adults.

Show times are Monday-Friday, 2 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, noon and 2 p.m. Admission is $3, adults; $2.50, seniors; $2, children 5-12. Children under 5 are admitted free.

The show was produced by Laura L. Kyro and written by Francis C. Biddy. It is narrated by Patricia Ball with Greg Byrne, Jim Johnson and Francis C. Biddy.

Science Center hours are: Monday-Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Call (314) 289-4400 for more information.

The tour also includes visits to three

James River Plantations. There will be a stop at the Williamsburg Pottery Factory.

The four-day, three-night package ranges from $423 to $621 and includes air fare, hotel accommodations and dinner. Departures are Dec. 9, 10 and 14.
